CASE STUDY

Portfolio Category: Nonprofit Organizations

Project Code: PS120368

Goal

Access to Humanitarian and Development Assistance (AHDI) needed a robust, engaging and functional website to showcase its programmes and initiatives. Prior to this time, there was no website in existence. As a nonprofit organization with its headquarters in Abuja, Nigeria, it was necessary that the website to be built met all possible standards and quality. From the onset, the Executive Director made it clear that the website should be able to satisfy minimum security standards. In addition, the website was to also have a functionality for visitors and/or anyone to make donations via the platform without any hassles.

Solution

With the goals and purpose for the website clearly spelt out, Paruto Solutions Ltd got to work right away and factored in all the requirements gathered during the planning stage. While adopting an agile approach, we were able to accommodate suggestions and feedback as development went on. This was instrumental to ensuring no need of AHDI was overlooked in the development of the website. Worthy of note also is the fact that we were able to deliver the project on time, within budget and scope. The features built into the website were designed to provide for future scalability and expansion. This means any future updates would easily integrate into the present build. The website was built on the Wordpress CMS - Content Management System - that has thousands of contributors in its community. This means the website is built for scale beyond the present.

Outcome

The project was delivered as planned and met all the agreed requirements captured from the project onset. As a matter of fact, we did deliver above expectation. It is safe to say, Paruto Solutions Ltd did it!
